An Overview of Dissertation in Psychology (PSYC7308)

Students of the Master of Social Sciences (Psychology) programme are required to write a dissertation in their final year of study to complete their programme.

Course Description

PSYC7308 Dissertation in Psychology (12 credits)

A student should conduct an independent empirical investigation of a psychological problem under the supervision of a faculty member. A successful dissertation should represent the result of the candidate's research which displays some originality and demonstrates a sound understanding of the field of study and the appropriate research methods. The dissertation should be about 8,000 - 10,000 words in length (excluding tables, figures, bibliographies, and appendices).

Overview

The dissertation will be an integration of everything the students have learned regarding psychological research. Each dissertation project will be supervised by a faculty member on group basis. The dissertation should include Title Page, Table of Contents, Abstract, Acknowledgement (if needed), Introduction, Methodology, Results, Discussion, Conclusion and Reference. The grading criteria will be based on: Knowledge of the research topic, Critical analysis, Novelty and significance, Design of study, Data analysis and presentation, Writing and organization.

Students should enrol this course at the beginning of their final year of study. They should complete an online Supervisor Preference Form by mid-October, which will be sent to the faculty members for consideration in order of their preferences. Students will be informed of the results by email in November. Change of group members or assigned supervisor are NOT allowed.

Ethics Application

All dissertation projects are required to undergo ethics review by reviewers assigned by the Departmental Research Ethics Committee. Applications should be submitted on group basis on or before 15th February. For a dissertation project that starts in the second semester, the application deadline is 30th April. Late submission will be penalized. Students can fail the course for not submitting an ethics application. Please see details of the ethics application on the departmental webpage:

Submission of Dissertation (Individual Submission)

1. Please submit your thesis to Moodle (course: PSYC7308 Dissertation in Psychology) before the deadline.
   a) Please submit in one single file in PDF format including all the chapters.
   b) All covering pages, pictures, tables and charts must be included in appropriate position of the file.
   c) There is no need to submit SPSS, Excel or other files separately.

2. The deadline of submission is 23:59 on 15th June. For a dissertation project that starts in the second semester, the submission deadline is 23:59 on 31st August.

3. The penalty for late submission is 2 marks for each calendar day, including Saturday, Sunday and public holidays providing that the student has informed his/her supervisor(s) regarding the late submission of thesis report at least 24 hours prior to the original submission deadline. If the student fails to inform his/her supervisor(s) about the late submission 24 hours prior to the original deadline but submits the thesis after the deadline, the late submission will result in an "F" grade.

4. Requests for deadline extension will not be permitted, except for medical reasons or other extenuating circumstances, students should submit a formal application for an extension of the thesis report submission deadline, with strong justifications supplemented by supporting document(s), to the supervisor(s) and the Chief Examiner for consideration and approval.

5. Students should give due acknowledgement when referring or quoting from literature, books, webpages, essays or any other information sources.

6. The soft copy will be checked for plagiarism against a database of articles, books, webpages, and essays submitted by students at HKU and other universities. No credit will be given if the work contains plagiarized materials. Further penalties will also be applied, including a zero mark for the course. Plagiarism record will be kept at the Department for consideration of possible disciplinary action. Please be sure to read the website to know more about how to avoid plagiarism: https://tl.hku.hk/plagiarism/how-to-avoid-plagiarism/

7. All raw data and research materials must be retained. Data must be stored in accordance with The University's Policy on the Management of Research Data and Records (https://www.rss.hku.hk/integrity/research-data-records-management). The department may invite you for an oral examination in addition to the submission.

Presentation of Research Project

Around the end of June, students will be required to present the research project findings on individual basis in the form of a poster presentation.
